My dear McLean,
I drop a hurried line on the eve of another journey, to ask you, to be so kind as to cause the fortnightly money to be forwarded

as soon as it can be procured; - Besides what I have myself advanced, there are parties waiting to be paid & I think they have given good credit.
The Government will find it much to their advantage to make small advances in the shape of a little ready money. It is very difficult to raise cash in these inland places & nothing is to be done without the hard stuff especially where the Natives are concerned.

hope, you will do the best you can, & you will know, that I would not trouble, if I were not really obliged.
Believe me, yours
