My dear Sir,
I received your letter 1/2 and owing to various circumstances I have been unable to reply sooner.
I met a Civil Engineer and Surveyor this morning, a thorough practical man, who has an apprentice about as good as himself & who are now employed on the line of railway - Will visit you, I can speak to their efficiency - Mr.
Malcomson will join you provided the appointment is permanent for £400 a year. Mr. Bellair who is now in the Survey Office and is a good draughtsman as well as a practical surveyor, he would take employment surveys at £300- I will write to White about Mr. Dunlop and let you know the result. The Waitakere Confederation question is how giving employment to so many surveyors that if you really want people to do your work properly you will require to be quick or you will not succeed. Please haste believe me as usual. J. Rogan
