the Maoris, but it is evident that he has not had any regular training for this work. As you must be aware success will depend very much upon order & method, and a knowledge therefore of the best mode of proceeding.
It occurs to me that if Mr Jamieson were to spend a little time in one of the best conducted schools which is under a trained master in Auckland perhaps, he would be able to gain a good insight into the system, which would be of great service to him.
I mentioned the idea to him and I believe he would be glad of the opportunity.

Shue is wanted also for the school.

a Map of New Zealand and a Map of the world, which I presume the Government will send him from the School Department at Wellington.

Believe me

most faithfully yours

W. Williams.
